The Bay School (TBS) is seeking a Speech & Language Pathologist to work part-time in a state-of-the-art school program for children, adolescents and young adults diagnosed with autism. The Bay School is a non-profit, nonpublic school located in Santa Cruz, California. As part of May Institute, a national organization of award-winning programs for individuals with autism, brain injury, mental retardation, and other behavioral healthcare needs, TBS employs the latest applied behavior analysis research findings to produce measurable and lasting improvements in the lives of students with autism.

General Job Description: To develop and provide educational and treatment programming related to communication goals in the classroom setting for students with autism and related disabilities. The Speech & Language Pathologist is expected to engage in active consultation with all TBS classroom staff. During active consultation, the Speech & Language pathologist observes the staff work with the student, reviews data, models various teaching strategies for the staff, provides corrective feedback to staff, and directly works with the student in order to revise or probe techniques.

Specific Responsibilities:

- Assessing students and developing formal programs to address communication goals
- Providing consultative services to students
- Developing assistive technology programs
- Providing formal and informal training to staff and families

Requirements:

- Master's degree in Communication Disorders, Speech Pathology or related field
- CCC-SLP licensure required
- Previous experience with augmentative communication, applied behavior analysis, and/or children with autism is desired

So why should you choose The Bay School as a career choice?

We have an energized team of professionals dedicated to making a difference in the lives of the students and families we serve. Enjoy a flexible schedule while working 1 mile from legendary beaches. Come join our team!
